

2nd Service-Learning Research Symposium

August 22, 2012

School of Economics, University of Buenos Aires
City of Buenos Aires, Argentina

This event has been declared as an "activity of institutional interest" by the Higher Council of the University of Buenos Aires. Resolution 4562/12, and by Argentina Ministry of Education, Resolution SE387/12.

Goals:

- Give impulse to the work began at the 1st Service-Learning Research Symposium in Latin America, organized by CLAYSS, the Organization of Ibero-American States (OEI), and the University of San Andrés in Buenos Aires on September 14th, 2004.
- Offer common grounds to give visibility and discuss current research in the region, especially regarding theoretical discussions, evaluation and systematization of practices and institutional programs.
- Promote the exchange between researchers groups that may be complementary and connected, to further develop a regional point of view and new and better research.

Participants:

- Service-learning researchers and practitioners, especially from the Americas and Spain.
- Faculty and Higher Education students involved in service-learning, extension or outreach, Higher Education Social Responsibility, civic engagement, volunteering and other forms of community engagement in educational or youth organizations settings.

Research topics:

1. Theoretical discussions and contributions on the definition of "service-learning" in a Latin American context.
2. Monitoring and evaluating institutional programs and practices of service-learning.
3. Case studies and systematization of programs and practices of service-learning.
